

Taste and See
By: Jeff Murphy

A couple of years ago, I hunted with a taxidermist who had a yellow lab hunting partner. Ever since then, I have wanted to get a lab myself. Last October, I saw an ad in a local paper for a Lab Mix dog for sale. I talked it over with my wife, we went and saw the puppy and decided to purchase him. I could go into why I got a mix and not a pure breed Lab, but I will just say...price.

Anyway, Remington has changed a lot in a year. He has become a great companion and is doing better everyday with his training. He is very curious and the other day he showed it. We were out at our camper and Remi saw a toad and tried to eat it. Apparently the toads' defense mechanism went off and it urinated in his mouth. Remi spit it out and shook his head and ran around a bit. Which made me think of Psalm 34:8 “Taste and see that the Lord is good; blessed is the man who takes refuge in him.” Unlike that toad, when you fear the Lord, you will want to taste more of what he has for you.
